By the way, things like this always look better to me on the second read compared to my first read.

Thanks for considering my comments.

David

Thanks Jennifer.

I got tired of putting responses both on document and in email. I did, however, change the "Review name" to "DABrerev" so one can find new responses to your comments.

Maybe we should all get together and discuss?

hi, David. here are my reactions to your first installment of comments. Henry and Paul may have different responses to your comments as well as comments on my responses, but because of the short time frame, with the mtg with the IO tomorrow morning, i'm sending this to all of you simultaneously. jj

I only got about half-way through the response to the OMB comments.

I'll share what I have, in redline. It may be we will just talk this all through with the IO.

On the first few comments, I read the comment very differently than you seem to.

I also think we may want on some of these to agree to further clarify our response to the SAB.

We likely won't provide written public response to all comments, but jotting down ideas or reactions in Track Changes was a way I could keep track of my reactions as I read it. And, for some or many of these, we will want to write up a response and it becomes an opportunity to almost write the trade press article that will come out after we release the assessment.

I think there is every reason to remain optimistic that we can get this out before the Holidays.
We are certainly going to try!

Thanks!!
